

THE PARIS BOMB THROWER.

IRETON WILL NOT ANSWER QUESTIONS ABOUT HIMSELF.

The Police, He Says, Must Find Out All They Want to Know—He is Thought to Have Been a Soldier—The Sort of Bomb He Threw—Visits to Valliant's Grave—Anarchists to Be Heavily Dealt With.

PARIS, Feb. 13.—The excitement occasioned by the explosion at the cafe of the Hotel Terminus last night has not abated. At least twenty-four persons were hurt. The name of the bomb thrower is Leon Iretion. The police believe that he is a member of an Anarchist group who have their headquarters at Nouilly-sur-Seine.

M. Dethou, chief of the anthropometric department of the Paris police, searched all the morning through the records of that department in the hope that the measurements and other details of criminals kept there would throw some light on the identity of Iretion. He found nothing to show that the prisoner had ever before been in the hands of the police. Iretion's hands are white, and the police say that he has not performed any manual labor for some time. From the manner in which he carries himself and from other traits in his demeanor it is believed that he has been a soldier.

Iretion was taken before Judge Meyer, an examining magistrate, to-day. He was piled with questions, to all of which he refused to make any answer. It has been evident ever since his arrest that Iretion does not intend to furnish the authorities any information, he having told them that it was their place to find out themselves whatever they wanted to know about him.

M. Girard, chief of the municipal laboratory, says that the bomb thrown by Iretion was made of a one-pound metal tin. It contained, he declares, eight ounces of chlorate of potash and picric acid. The "green powder" that was used by Valliant in making the bomb that he threw in the Chamber of Deputies was not used by Iretion.

Detective Houllier says he believes he has seen Iretion in England. All the persons who were wounded by the explosion are making good progress toward recovery.

M. Jarnal, Minister of the Interior, was highly gratified by the bravery displayed by M. Policeman, Polson, who was one of the three men who pursued Iretion, and who was wounded by one of the revolver shots fired by the fugitive. He proposed to-day to President Carnot that Polson be made a member of the Legion of Honor, and M. Carnot agreeing, the decoration has been ordered.

Iretion was committed to Judge Meyer this evening that he had given a wrong account of himself. He gave a number of names, all of which are believed to be false. Detective Houllier believes that Iretion had just arrived from London. The prisoner speaks English and wears an English shirt and other English clothes. He has been very clean when examined, and otherwise showed that he had been accustomed to decent life. His education is above the average. On seeing Detective Houllier on Monday night, Iretion exclaimed: "Hello, Houllier! It's you! I knew you well."

Detective Houllier admits his belief that he is on the verge of an important discovery in connection with the case.

The Government is determined to stop the pilgrimages that are being made to Valliant's grave in Ivery Cemetery. An order has been issued forbidding any one to go to the grave, and policemen had stationed themselves at the cemetery to see that the order is carried out.

In the Chamber of Deputies to-day M. Auguste Douge, a Radical Republican, questioned the Government respecting the maintenance of the order of the anniversary of the death of Valliant. He made particular reference to the fact that the sympathizers with the anarchist movement were taking advantage of the Government's failure to protect society. Continuing, he declared that the Government should be followed by their faithful.

M. Clovis-Hugues, Socialist, frequently interrupted the speaker, and called his attention to him. Amid tremendous applause M. Douge declared that the time had come for the Government to take action to suppress revolutionary manifestations, no matter what the cost.

M. Jarnal, Minister of the Interior, replied that the visits to Valliant's grave had only increased the excitement of the crowd, and that the Government would defend the law-abiding people and would punish all the sensitiveness of the anarchists who were so ready to stir up the passions of the crowd.

M. Loubet, a Socialist member, who took part in Sunday's demonstration in Ivery Cemetery, declared that he merely went to the cemetery in recognition of the anniversary of the death of a Socialist named Valliant. It was only after he had been arrested that he admitted that a red flag had been unfurled. M. Loubet repudiated the charge that he had taken any part in the demonstration.

The President of the Chamber of Deputies has received a number of threatening letters, and the Government is taking steps to protect him.

DANIEL LANDS HIS MAN.

But Doesn't Say How He Will Vote on the Peckham Case.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—Senator McLaughlin, who has been elected from Mississippi to fill Gen. Waltham's unexpired term, is expected to reach Washington to-morrow morning in time to take a hand in the contest over the Peckham nomination. Just after his election Mr. McLaughlin submitted to an interview, in which he intimated his mind was made up as to how he would vote on the Peckham case.

A Mississippi member of the House of Representatives is authority for the statement that men were at the Capitol to-day claiming to speak for the Administration, and in their efforts to induce some of the Congressmen from that State to use their influence to elect, and the Peckham case, the Senate the offer of Federal offices was freely made.

The nominations made by the President yesterday demonstrate that the Administration is bending every effort to win votes for Peckham by means of patronage. For instance, an appointment that Senator Daniel of Virginia has asking to have made for more than eight months was sent in yesterday. The Senator has not declared how he will vote on the Peckham nomination, but he said that he was undecided. The President, however, has appointed Daniel a particular friend to the Peckham nomination for the Eastern District of Virginia.

Senator Vane of Florida, who is a member of the Senate, is also a member of the House of Representatives. He is a member of the Senate, and is a member of the House of Representatives. He is a member of the Senate, and is a member of the House of Representatives.

OSWALD ACOSTED JURORS.

THREE OF THEM POINT OUT THE MAN TO JUDGE INGRAM.

A Stir in Court to Wind Up the Day in the Trial of How's Suit Against Woodruff for Attentive Mrs. How's Affection.

Testimony for the defense, together with statements by several of the jurors that a man had attempted to talk to them about the case, made the proceedings rather interesting yesterday in Judge Ingram's court, where Ithamar Howe's suit for $50,000 against Isaac O. Woodruff, the wealthy druggist, is on trial. Howe says that Woodruff alienated Mrs. Howe's affections. Testimony had been offered for the plaintiff to show that Woodruff and Mrs. Howe passed some time together on June 1, 1891, at the club house of the Megantic Fish and Game Club on Spider Lake, Canada. To rebut this, Andrew W. Gleason, a lawyer, testified yesterday that with Mr. Woodruff and two others he left this city on Decoration Day, 1891, for the Megantic Club. At the club house Mrs. Howe came running out to meet them. "Howe and I spent the rest of the day together," said the witness, "when we were at the Megantic Club, and we had a shooting match, and, hearing the report of a rifle, we looked out of the window. Mrs. Howe was in the midst of the shooting party taking part in the contest. She was an excellent shot, and could bring down a deer with the best of us."

He further stated that Mrs. Howe was not up at that time while he and the defendant were there.

Lawyer Aaron then handed Mr. Gleason the photograph of Mrs. Howe.

"Do you know this photograph to be that of Mrs. Howe?"

"I would not know it from the Angel Gabriel," he replied.

The witness then told Mrs. Howe was photographed by her husband in the attire shown in the picture while all the Megantic Club members stood around admiringly.

Then the witness was taken in hand by Lawyer Murphy, counsel for plaintiff, who asked:

"This photograph as handsome as Mrs. Howe?"

"Really, sir, I am not a judge of female beauty and cannot tell you."

"Do you know the Angel Gabriel?"

"No, sir, I do not know the Angel Gabriel, but I hope to make his acquaintance later on."

WHERE IS MRS. ARNSTEIN?

Missing Since Saturday, and Her Family Can Suggest No Explanation.

Mrs. Emma Arndstein, a married woman with five grown children, left her home at 342 East Eighty-seventh street on Saturday morning to inspect a piece of property which her husband was thinking of buying, and up to a husband has not the slightest clue to where she went after leaving the house or to where she is now. After going to the homes of all his friends and relatives, Mr. Arndstein reported the matter to the police, and this alarm was sent out yesterday.

Mrs. Arndstein is a retired merchant. She said last night: "I was thinking of buying a piece of property, and I went out to look at it. I was thinking of buying a piece of property, and I went out to look at it. I was thinking of buying a piece of property, and I went out to look at it."

SHOT HIS WIFE AND CHILD.

THE DOUBT CRIME OF A RICH MAN'S SON IN ST. LOUIS.

Dr. Arthur Duestrow, Mad with Drink, Strikes a Servant Girl, and When His Wife Remonstrates He Shoots Her Twice—His Three-year-old Boy Rushes Into His Arms and Is Shot Dead.

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 13.—At 4 o'clock this afternoon Dr. Arthur Duestrow, while in a drunken delirium, shot and mortally wounded his wife, and ended the life of their son, Louis, 3 years old. Dr. Duestrow, son of the late Louis Duestrow, one of the Granite Mountain Mine millionaires. The Doctor receives an income of $25,000 a year from his father's estate. He has a handsome home at 1,724 South Compton avenue, but to-night he lies in a cell, the frenzied victim of remorse, while in his home and mother. She has a bullet in her brain and another in her side, while the child was shot in the head and breast.

Duestrow drove up to the house in a sleigh just before 4 o'clock. His wife saw him from the window and immediately sent a servant girl to ask if Mr. Duestrow was home. When she saw her husband, she was so much affected by his condition, turned and started back to the house. Duestrow jumped from the sleigh and started after her, and she, becoming frightened, ran up stairs. He pursued, and she took refuge in Mrs. Duestrow's bedroom. He followed her, and she, seeing that she was alone, struck her. Mrs. Duestrow sprang forward and exclaimed:

"How dare you strike that poor girl? If you want to hit me, hit me."

The madman then struck her, and she ran screaming from the room. He followed, striking her at every step. When in the hall, she turned and pushed him. He fell against the wall, and then, like a flash, he drew a revolver and shot the woman in the side. She sank to the floor, and as she fell a scream of reason seemed to enter his befogged brain, and he knelt beside her, calling her by name, and begging her to look up at him.

When Louis ran into the room and rushed into his father's arms and began kissing him. This seemed again to enrage the man. Picking the boy up and holding him tightly in his arms, he fired one bullet into his breast and another into his temple. Death came almost instantaneously. Dropping the body beside the mother, he sent another bullet into her brain and then dashed from the house.

Armed and with revolver in hand, he rushed through the streets to the Lafayette Park police station. As he entered he screamed at the top of his voice:

"It was an accident! I did not kill her! I am no murderer. I did not kill her!"

Getting his address, Capt. Keeble and several policemen ran to the house. There lying on the floor of the up-stairs hall was Mrs. Duestrow, her head toward the billiard room, her feet toward the bedroom. She was lying on her back, her arms outstretched toward the body of her child, which lay beside her, as though her last thought had been to hold him in her arms. The bodies were carried into the billiard room and laid upon the table, and physicians were summoned. There was still a chance that the mother might recover, but the child was dead.

THE WAR ON THE PERRS.

Laborers and Others Address the Reform Union.

LONDON, Feb. 13.—A great meeting of the London Reform Union to protest against the existence of the House of Lords was held this evening. Sydney Buxton, member of Parliament for the Tower Hamlets and Parliamentary Secretary to the Colonial Office, made a speech in which he said that the Lords had flouted and insulted the people's delegates, and that it was high time that they were called to account. Similar speeches were made by Sir Wilfrid Lawson, Henry Labouchere, and others.

The Government would not submit, he said, to being dictated to by the Lords.

A number of radical meetings were held in the provinces this evening, at which the consensus was in favor of abolishing the House of Lords.

The agitation against the Lords is increasing daily. The last columns of the radical newspapers are filled with accounts of the movement, the ordinary news of the day being curtailed.

ENTOMBED IN A COAL MINE.

THIRTEEN MEN ALMOST HOPELESSLY IMPRISONED AT FLYMOOTH, P.I.

They Went In to Strengthen Weak Places with Timber, and Said if the Roof Fell They Would Be Found in a Certain Spot—A Long Task Ahead of the Rescuers.

PLYMOUTH, Pa., Feb. 13.—Thirteen miners, known as timber men, were entombed in the Flymoor coal mine early this morning. It is thought they are alive, but the prospect for their rescue is almost hopeless.

The rescuers must dig through 300 feet of earth and 400 feet of solid coal to reach them. The mouth of the mine has been craved all day with frantic relatives and their friends, and scores of men have offered to assist in the attempt at rescue.

The entombed men are: Thomas Jones, married; Plymouth; Edward Davis, married; Plymouth; John Morris, married; Plymouth; Thomas Merriam, married; Plymouth; Thomas Cole, married; Plymouth; Jos. Olin, married; Plymouth; Daniel Morgan, married; Plymouth; John Palmer, married; Plymouth; Peter S. McLaughlin, married; Plymouth; Michael Welsh, married; Plymouth; Thomas Lesson, single; Plymouth.

The thirteen men who are imprisoned were warned yesterday that there was danger ahead, but they were of the opinion that the danger was not sufficient for them to stay out. They entered the mine to the hoisting engineer as they went down the pit:

"Should anything occur you will find us in the big branch in the Bennett vein."

The miners went to work strengthening a section of the roof which for some time has been considered very weak. After a shot had been fired, and without any warning whatever, the roof, consisting of rock and coal, fell in, and the men were entombed. Several mine foremen and their assistants, led by John K. Davis, superintendent of Flymoor Works, who was on duty at the mine, soon as the news came, and started all the afternoon, came out at 5 o'clock and reported that all the entombed men were still alive. The cave-in is in what is known as the Flymoor vein, which is about a mile from the mine. The cave-in covers an area of about a mile, having extended since noon of today, and affects the main shaft of the mine. The entombed men are few cracks may be seen on the surface, but this has not become seriously affected as yet. The result of the cave-in is that the mine is on account of the further caving in of the mine. The crashing of the immense rocks as they fell down the shaft, and the rumbling of the many falls, and the roar of the wind by the confusion, forced the men to retreat to the surface. The men were taken from the shaft this afternoon, as the cave-in was extending close to the foot.

There are two miles yet in the mine, near the cave where the men are entombed. It is believed that they may yet survive the same purposes as did the men in the Sugar Notch mine in 1870, on the same day, when they were entombed for seven days, until they were rescued alive.

This is, however, only a faint probability, as the men have been entombed for more than a week, and the mine is now a mass of rubble. The men are now in a state of starvation, and the mine is now a mass of rubble. The men are now in a state of starvation, and the mine is now a mass of rubble.
